

2022 ANNUAL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

Andrew Kriegler President and CEO, IIROC and Incoming CEO, New SRO

Andrew J. Kriegler will be the inaugural CEO of the self-regulatory organization to be formed on January 1, 2023 through the amalgamation of the Investment Industry Regulatory Organization of Canada (IIROC) and the Mutual Fund Dealers Association of Canada (MFDA). Andrew has served as President and CEO of IIROC since late 2014.

Before coming to IIROC, Andrew served as Deputy Superintendent of the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (OSFI) where he was responsible for the prudential supervision of Canada's federally regulated financial institutions. He also spent 25 years in the private sector, most recently as Treasurer of CIBC from 2008 to 2012, and earlier as Senior Vice President & Chief Human Resources Officer of Moody's Corporation, parent of the credit rating agency Moody's Investors Service, where he had been the Country Managing Director.

Andrew has also worked as a treasury executive and as a securitization and debt capital markets banker and began his career as an analyst and then a trader on a mortgage-backed securities trading desk.

Andrew serves on the Board of Directors of the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation (CDIC). He holds an MBA from the Ivey Business School at Western University and a B.Sc. in Computer Science and Economics from Trinity College in the University of Toronto.
